

English Q3 Structure: Learning Journey

What are we learning about?

We are looking at how a writer makes specific choices about the organisation or the order of events and the presentation of details and ideas in a text.

Why are we learning about it?

The structure of a text plays an important role in how plots, characters and ideas are presented and developed. It can be used to manipulate the reader's reaction and their engagement with the text and its ideas.

What new KNOWLEDGE will I gain?

You will learn a range of structural terminology that will help you analyse the writer's choices. You will also learn about the different approaches a writer can take to organising a text.

TOPIC: Paper 1 Skills (revision)

How does this build on the SKILLS I already have?

This unit builds on your ability to select examples from the text, link them to subject terminology and then explain the impact of the writer's choices across a wide range of texts.

What new SKILLS will I develop?

You will learn to explore the text as a whole and identify the key structural changes and developments made by the writer from the beginning to the end. You will apply your new terminology to a wide range of texts.

How does this build on the KNOWLEDGE I already have?

This unit builds on your knowledge of how the writer makes choices to engage and impact on the reader.
